invention relates generally to a method for control of a terminal of a network, and more particularly, to a method for control of a terminal of a network, and a terminal, in which the terminal can transfer a control signal to a control server through an IP network, and can perform a call or a session establishment processing. 2.

Description of the Related Art The Internet has evolved from an on-line information exchange system for connecting the research institutes, universities and companies to a multi-media information and communication network for distributing various types of information and media services. Further, a multi-media Internet having a multi-media architecture has recently been provided to support service of various multimedia appliances, such as a Web TV, a multimedia PC and a TV telephone. An MPEG-4 standard is a core of this multi-media Internet. There are basically two schemes in which the Internet
