The Dictator's Game By Fareed Zakaria Updated Feb. 25, 2010 12:01 a.m. ET I'm a sucker for betting. Especially when the odds are long. In November 2007, I picked up a magazine I thought no longer existed: the now-defunct "Horses & Stars," an owner-produced magazine produced in the early 1950s that specialized in horse racing. Its theme song was Irving Berlin's "Always." It was too late to order a subscription to the magazine, which was also too expensive. But I thought it looked interesting, and even with the magazine appearing nearly extinct, there were plenty of copies available on the Internet, and some of them were great bargains. So I bought one and started browsing the magazine's archive. In the next few months, I bought several other copies, including c9d1549cdd

Pro X 10.3 John is a Senior, Producer and Editor at Blackmagic Design. You can follow his thoughts on FCP X and his everyday projects at john@fromjohn.com You get a pre-release program so by the time it's released it should be awesome. Here's what I like about Final Cut Pro X:

Features: Feature/UI: I love the new visual aspects of the interface. It allows for a balance between the appearance of professional software and that of being fun. I know some will hate the look, but when adjusted it will work for most.

Editing: Improved timeline with as many 'normal' tool changes as the previous. Based on the Preferences, this is what you'll see.

Snapping Tool: Rearranged included with the keyboard shortcuts, but it allows you to adjust the amount of the range you want a clip to be. And during the editing process you can use keyboard shortcuts to constrict or extend the range.

Clips: Largest improvement in the latest version.

Trim bar: The new Trim bar you are presented with that is designed by Apple, so it feels and looks a lot better than any other. You can manage your Trim bar with the keyboard shortcuts, adjust the default width (15 pixel) of the bar with the Preferences

Clips: Timeline and Timeline window: Improved entry point for clips in the timeline. You can reorder tracks, reorder the Clips, drag a track to a clip and change a clip's position. You can also Free Timeline window allows you to reorganize the timelines in the Clips. The timeline is the document view window, it allows you to see your Clips in visual form.

Clips: Master clips: It has the "store a set of clips as a master clip" The improvements aren't visible to the end-user, but I will explain what those are:

Time Machine: It's now a full featured Time Machine, and the interface is much faster.

Location/Properties: It's much easier to see the metadata for any given clip

Clips: Finder IOS target: Let's say you downloaded a video. Now you want to find it in the Finder. It
