Games 2 2 Our Lovely Escape. Introduction This game is a love story about two very special people, Tom and Tammy, who live in the town of Carrollton, Texas. Tom has never been married to Tammy, and they were never apart for any significant amount of time before meeting in college. During their college days, Tom and Tammy spent a lot of time together, and they both began falling in love with one another. Tom decided he wanted to propose to Tammy, so he asked his parents if they could make some travel plans, and they happily obliged. Tom had always had dreams of living on a beautiful farm with his beloved Tammy, and to have his wedding take place in a beautiful place filled with greenery and flowers would make a wonderful start of their lives together. When the day arrived, Tom flew to Carrollton and rented a cottage in the town where he and Tammy could spend their honeymoon. Tammy, being a very special person, had asked Tom to buy a gift for her wedding, so Tom went into town to find something suitable. The wedding was very beautiful and the sun was shining bright in the morning. During the wedding ceremony, Tom was waiting patiently at the altar for Tammy to walk down the aisle. Tom suddenly felt his heart skip a beat when he realized Tammy was late. To his dismay, he spotted her walking down the aisle, but she seemed to be having some kind of a mental breakdown. Tom just stood there speechless, shaking in his shoes, watching Tammy not take any notice of him, and Tammy walking right up to her wedding groom and kissing him on the cheek. Her hands were all over his face, and Tom felt like he had just walked into a strange house full of people who weren't home, and then suddenly everything happened so fast that Tom had to look up at the ceiling to try to make sense of what was happening. Tom felt like he was falling, and then he found himself sitting down on the floor and everyone around him turned their attention to him, staring at him as he tried to sit up. Tom looked over to Tammy and saw that she had also passed out on the floor and was lying in a pool of blood. He looked over at his own dead parents, both laid out in the room, their eyes closed, and then he noticed that the photographer and all of his friends had left the room as well. Tom crawled over to Tammy and gently shook her shoulder to

What's new:

-11 The Arrow Ventura (VR-11) is an American patrol and utility helicopter manufactured by the Arrow Corporation. Originally a modified Robinson R-22 Bimibyte, the U.S. Army purchased 150 of the modified aircraft at a cost of $94 million in November 1971. The improved version was renamed "Ventura", with minor design and performance changes. The Army bought an additional 115 aircraft in March 1973 and an additional 135 in November 1973. Of the 295 of the type ordered, 213 were produced in 1973 and 1974. The last one was later modified to become the Robinson R-22B II. Development In December 1968, the U.S. Army decided to procure French-developed helicopters after a potential sales contract fell apart with the Sikorsky Aircraft Corporation. Sikorsky had put the Robinson R-22 in development as a utility transport helicopter, but did not want to spend the money to "modernize" it and produce a "civil" version, whereas Sikorsky considered British-developed helicopters as well as the R-22 as civil designs. The Army's requirement was that the next helicopter be available for their use by the early 1970s, with high survivability, cargo and transport capability, rugged construction and ease of maintenance. In 1968, the Army accepted a proposal from development agency Development and Testing Agency ("DTA") to develop and field-test a utility helicopter. This led to the creation of the United States Army Helicopter Board (USHAB) by DTA and the U.S. Army. General Eugene Brooks as the first Chief of the Army Aviation Corps (established on July 1, 1968). USHAB commissioned helicopter design agency The Helicopter Research, Testing and Engineering Center (HHRTC), which developed the prototype helicopter that was to be carried into production as the UH-1. USHAB established two committees to evaluate the proposals of two competing helicopters: The light utility helicopter (LUH) team and the light utility helicopter system (LUS) team. Both the Vultee UH-1 and the Robinson R-22 were under consideration. The LUH design was selected by the Army on October 31, 1969, and production was to be funded by DTA and its successor company, DDTC. On September 29, the Army agreed to purchase 57 UH-1s at a cost of $131 million (US$ million in dollars). Early developments The first prototype of the type
